

Make a Difference in Education!

Paraeducator Training Program

Start your career in education as a Paraeducator with an opportunity for growth and advancement. The New Bedford and Fairhaven Public Schools Districts are prepared to hire trained paraprofessionals, also known as paraeducators, who want to make a difference in students' lives.

This 1-month hybrid training program, followed by self-paced study, prepares you with the skills and certification needed to work in local public schools.

What do Paraeducators do?

Paraeducators support both the teacher and the student in a classroom. The training is designed to encompass the skills necessary to successfully support students and educators within the K-12 school setting.

Program Benefits

- Quick and comprehensive training with certification
- Job opportunities in local elementary or high school settings
- Flexible and part-time job schedules that align with school calendars
- No-cost training for income-eligible or unemployed individuals

Who may be right for this role?

- Anyone interested in becoming more involved with schools
- Childcare workers looking to advance into teaching
- Graduating students considering a career in education or human services
- Individuals with a passion for helping others
